

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:
March 10, 2005

For Further Information Contact:
Richard Lang: 707-541-3870

Burst.com, Inc. Announcement

Santa Rosa, Calif., (March 10, 2005) – Burst.com, Inc. (OTC.BB: BRST), today makes the following announcement:

1. The Company has reached an agreement in principle with Microsoft Corporation to settle its current litigation;
2. The agreement is subject to the execution of formal documentation which the parties hope to complete within 5 business days.

A court hearing scheduled to take place today in Baltimore will not go forward. The hearing will be rescheduled only if necessary.

Burst plans to provide detailed information with respect to the settlement and other matters as soon as the settlement is completed.

About Burst.com:

Burst.com, headquartered in Santa Rosa, California, is the developer of Faster-Than-Real-Time™ and Burst-Enabled™ video and audio delivery software. Burst.com's Burstware® provides high-quality delivery of full-motion video and CD-quality audio over IP-based networks. The company, established in 1990, has built an international patent portfolio covering bursting, video delivery scheduling and Rapid-casting. Burstware®, Faster-Than-Real-Time™ and Burst-Enabled™ are trademarks of Burst.com. More information about Burst.com is available at www.burst.com.